Antitrust and class action complaint. The defendants have suppressed the remuneration available to the plaintiff and other athletes through illegal price-fixing arrangements, depriving the plaintiff of fair compensation and the opportunity to capitalize on his athletic talents. For instance, the defendants limit the amount players may receive as compensation for their services through "full grant-in-aid", which cover only tuition, room and board, course books and fees.

Class action and antitrust violations. While the defendants have reaped the rewards of the plaintiffs, the defendants have unlawfully suppressed the remuneration available to the plaintiffs through horizontal per se illegal price-fixing arrangements. The defendants have jointly agreed and conspired with their member institutions to deny the plaintiffs the compensation they would otherwise receive for their services in a competitive market. The defendants also have rules for unlawful group boycotts of any player that refuses to comply with the defendants' price-fixing agreement. As a result of the defendants' price-fixing and group boycott arrangements, the plaintiffs are unable to market their services as football and basketball players at competitive rates, resulting in substantial economic harm to them. The plaintiffs seek a judgment enjoining the defendants from maintaining and enforcing their anticompetitive rules.

1. The first step in the process is to identify the problem or issue that needs to be addressed. This involves gathering information and understanding the context of the problem.

2. Once the problem is identified, the next step is to define the objectives and goals of the project. This helps to clarify what needs to be achieved and provides a clear direction for the team.

3. The third step is to develop a plan or strategy to address the problem. This involves breaking down the problem into smaller, manageable tasks and determining the resources needed to complete each task.

4. The fourth step is to implement the plan. This involves assigning tasks to team members, setting deadlines, and monitoring progress to ensure that the project is on track.

5. The final step is to evaluate the results of the project. This involves comparing the actual outcomes against the objectives and goals to determine the success of the project and identify areas for improvement.
